Learn why this is important

Good afternoon Bruce,

Thank you for your email.

Please could I ask which hospital I should use for the quotation? Your email shows two - Fitzwilliam Hospital and Boston West Hospital.

Many thanks.

Kind regards

Kate Griffiths

Hello,

I was contacted by Catrin Hollings about the TOF3D nerve stimulator by letter in Oct 22,

Part number

2510091

Product name :

TOF 3D Neuromuscular Transmission Monitor

We are now in need of replacements for our Microstim DB3, which I believe is no longer able to be purchased for human use.

Part number 2510011

Product name Veterinary Microstim DB3 - Supramaximal Nerve Stimulator

GTIN / EAN13 5051826050637

The Veterinary Microstim DB3 Supramaximal Nerve Stimulator provides a means of assessing, on demand, the depth or degree of muscle relaxation achieved during anaesthesia.

- Easy to Use

- Low Cost
- Compact

Please note: The Veterinary version includes both standard patient leads (2520000) as well as the croc clip version (2520020).

The Microstim DB3 is now only available to purchase for use in Veterinary environments. The product is no longer CE marked and is therefore not certified for human clinical use within the EU.

The Microstim DB3 was discontinued as a medical product on the 17th May 2019. The reason being is that it is not feasible to certify this legacy product to meet the requirements of the European Union Medical Device Regulation (MDR).

The decision to discontinue the Microstim DB3 does not affect any devices already supplied, which were fully compliant with CE regulatory requirements that were in place when the devices were sold. Any devices currently in service bear a valid CE mark and there is no need to withdraw the units from use.

We will be looking at purchasing two TOF3D initially and possibly two more within months.

Could you please supply a quote for two items, can you include the following;

Price excluding VAT

Price including VAT

Transport / delivery cost

Thankyou and regards,

Bruce

Many thanks for your reply Bruce.

Please see attached quotation, I can of course change the invoice address upon receipt of a PO if you decide to go ahead.

I need to ask which accessories you might need us to add to your quotation please?

As your hospital has not ordered before, we would need to start your account on a proforma invoice basis.

Kind regards

Kate Griffiths
