Good morning Michael,

I would like to make new order:

- sensor R-17 VAN - 4 pcs
- sensor R-33S1 - 1 pcs

Please send me proforma invoice to payment.

I'd rather you send me all sensors with the most appropriate date for expiry.

Best regards,
Milena ;)

Dear Mariusz

I hope you are keeping well and please accept my reply to your email.

You are quite right, the current R-33DE sensors have a manufacture date of March 2023.

The manufacturer of the wet component part of the R-33 type sensors has a policy that they will deliver sensors up to 12 months old from the date of manufacture.

In addition to this policy, there is a huge backlog of these types of sensors. As an example we still have sensors on back order that were ordered in September and we are not expecting them to arrive until sometime in the first quarter of next year. Because of these delays, the only way we can offer a consistent supply is to increase our stock holding, which does mean that sensors could be older than expected.

However, the time in the sealed package has little impact on the sensor life and there is no listed expiry date. The manufacture date does not impact the warranty period of the sensor, as this is from the date of invoice.

If you have concerns that you will not be able to sell your stock, please let me know the serial numbers and you can return them to us or we could increase the warranty by a few months if this helps.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Best regards
Ryan

Good morning Michael,

I received package yesterday. Thank you.

I asked you to send me all sensors with the most appropriate date for expiry. R-33 DE sensors have a production date of March 2023 (C3). I don't know why you sold me sensors that were manufactured half a year ago and their expiration date is short. I doubt my customers would buy sensors with this date.

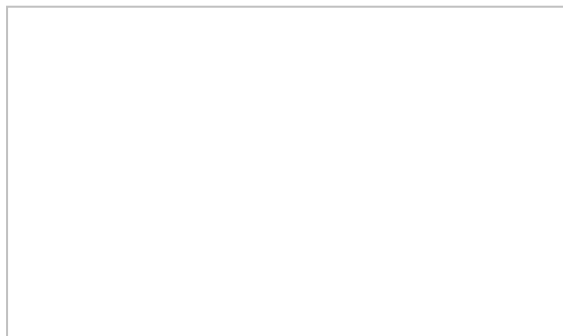

Do you have a suggestion for solving this problem?

Best regards,
mlinke ;)
