Thank you for your reply Kennedy.

I have checked with accounts, and they say that it can be VAT exempt this time but if we do not get proof we will no longer be able to ship to the UK as VAT exempt again.

Accounts also say that to comply with our Government regulations we would need proof of export: documentation that proves the goods have left the UK, which can include:

Bill of Lading

Air Waybill

Freight forwarder's receipt

Export declaration (if applicable)

Certificate of shipment

Your shipping company would have to provide proof. As we did not receive the proof last time we need to ensure it is provided in the future.

Unfortunately, we can be fined if we do not receive the correct proof.

I will change your order to show no VAT payable for this order and I will send you the order confirmation shortly.

Kind regards

Kate Griffiths

Further to the mail its clear that the delivery address is Jambo cargo while the invoice has been addressed to Medisyst Limited, Nairobi Kenya this would be reason enough to show that the consignment will be delivered to kenya.

Hi Kate,

The order is being shipped to a consolidator who is Jambo cargo if you charge us VAT on the consignment, we will pay VAT in England and Kenya eventually making the product to be expensive. This proof of export can only be provided by the consolidator once they have collected all the goods and register the consignment in Kenya that's when they can get the IDF.

Talk to your accounts department I hope this explanation goes well with them. Thanks.

Kennedy Watanga

Hi again Kennedy,

I have been informed by our accounts department that I have to charge you VAT on your order as it is being shipped to the UK.

If you email us with proof of export later, it can then be claimed back.

Please let me know if you accept the updated quotation with VAT on it.

Many thanks.

Kind regards

Kate Griffiths
