Dear Tor

I hope this email finds you well.

A short while ago we sent out a mailing regarding our new trade and retail pricing.
Because of the number of people we have to contact, this is done via a 3rd party system called mail chimp, which allows recipients to opt out of such mailings if they wish.

According to the system you are currently opted out, so we were unable to include you in the notification. As it could negatively impact your business if you are to sell certain products at the existing pricing after the new price list comes into force, I thought it would be worth contacting you directly.

Please find the new retail and trade pricing attached. We have started to use the retail pricing already, but the trade pricing will change on the 1st March and any orders that are received before that date will be at the existing pricing.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Kind regards
Ryan
