Ryan,

thanks for your feedback about the manufacture dates of UFO130-2 sensors, because of the Oxygen sensors have warranty of only 12 months. and limited shelflife period, users are critical about the sensors' production date. furthermore, we couldn't place many more quantity order for stock at one time to save the cost.

as mentioned by Aqib,
you have latest manufacture date of 28th January, please change the order qty as 40pcs with manufacture date of 28th January 2026, thanks

Thanks & Best Regards

Hi Hanson

I hope you are well, and thank you for your email.

In relation to your request for sensors with recent manufacture dates, by the time your order is processed (end of May), there is a good possibility that the sensors will have a manufacture date from March onwards. However, I should note that we are unfortunately unable to guarantee specific manufacture dates.

This is because Teledyne does not guarantee that the sensors supplied to us will correspond to the month of delivery. In addition, their lead times are typically around four months, and can occasionally be longer. As a result, we are required to hold stock for longer periods than we might for other models.

Even if we were to place a dedicated advance order on your behalf, the manufacture date provided by Teledyne would still not be guaranteed.

That said, we do have a good turnover of UFO130-2 sensors, and in practice these are usually received by us within a couple of months of manufacture.

I hope this helps clarify the situation, but please do let me know if you would like to discuss this further.

Kind regards,
Ryan
