Now I understand you.

I thought that they were kept for too long and their certificate has expired.

We will not use them for medical purposes. We are developing a ventilator and we need them for calibrating.

Please - make us an invoice.

Alexey will be engaged in further support of the transaction (he is in a copy)

Dear Alex

I am not sure I understand your 1st question?

They are not certified, as the costs of meeting the latest CE certification are too high and are not supported by the current sales volume.

Are you wanting them for medical use? If so, will you require CE certification?

Best regards

Ryan

Do you mean specifically these details that you have? or all these details?

For what reason are they not certified?

Dear Alex

Thank you very much for your email.

These parts no longer have EU CE certification for medical use? If you do not require them for medical use or you do not require CE certification, then they are available to purchase:

0120108 - T Adapter = USD $6.65 each EXW

We currently have 24 pieces available from stock.

I look forward to your feedback and I welcome any questions you may have.

Best regards

Ryan
