Dear Ryan,

Thank you for the fast reply.

We don't need it as a medical device. We use it for testing of the O2 terminal units and O2 concentrators.

However, if you have also in your portfolio or your sister company' portfolio a device for ambiental O2 measurement, please be kind to help us with an offer as well. Currently in Romania, due to Covid 19 outbreak, in ICU it is required to have an Oxygen concentration measurement device which a lot of hospitals don't have.

Thank you in advance and looking forward to your offers.

Have a lovely day ahead!

Best regards,

Monica BUJANOVSKI

Dear Monica

Thank you very much for your message.

Please note that our VN202 is not certified for medical use. However, we have sold some units for the testing of O2 concentrators, where it is not required to have medical CE, as the device is only being used as test equipment. Please can you let me know what you require the device for?

If it is a true medical device that you require, we have a sister company that supplies medical certified devices, I will be able to make some suggestions for you based on your requirements.

I look forward to your reply,

Best regards

Ryan
