Hi Dave,

Please can you review the following and advise? Here are our recommendations and the costs involved:

Firstly, Room 5 - We have already supplied a replacement cabinet for Room 5, so I believe that this has now been resolved. Do you know if this has been fitted?

Second, Room 12 - Please find attached a quotation for the replacement of the cracked warmer casing by a Viamed engineer by way of an interim service visit. Alternatively, we can supply the casing to you @ £98.00+VAT + £10.00+VAT carriage and you can fit it, avoiding the call-out charge.

Third, Room 3 - The manufacturer of the cabinet body advises that this can be repair with a standard contact adhesive, such as Evostick. The quotation for the call-out to replace the radiant warmer head unit will cover our engineer glueing this back in place, providing the room is available.

Finally, Maternity B - We recommend that the cabinet be replaced in Maternity B as replacement doors are no longer available for this older design of cabinet. If your Estates department are able to effect in-house repairs on furniture, they may want to take a look, but Viamed does not employ joiners or structural engineers so we would just advise that the Trust replaces the cabinet body.

I have attached a copy of the quotation that was used for the previous cabinet replacement in Room5, the prices are still valid so it can be re-used. Please note that this is for 'supply only'.

Quotations attached:

- QUO03620 - for a replacement cabinet body for Room Maternity B
- QUO03626 - for replacement of radiant warmer casing in room 12 and fixing of edging strip in Room 3.

If you want Viamed to do the work, just raise a purchase order against this quotation. Alternatively, if you are happy sticking down the edging strip and replacing the radiant warmer casing yourself, just raise an order for the casing only (or add it to the order for the replacement cabinet body if you are ordering that too).

Regards,
Steve
